

Sona Mehring Shares Her CaringBridge Story

Dear Brian,

Just like you, I understand what it feels like to go through, or watch a loved one face, a serious health event. CaringBridge was founded on a deeply personal experience: my close friend's life-threatening pregnancy. What began in 1997 as a site for one family is today an international service connecting millions.

Traci Gains Strength Through Connections with 'Amazing People'

When Traci was diagnosed with breast cancer, she knew she would not be able to update all her family and friends easily. After undergoing surgery, she hurt physically and emotionally every time she held the phone. Receiving messages of love and support from family and friends was as important as keeping them updated.
